Special Edition!

Voting for The Gobrecht Journal Literary Award - Best Article In Issues #76 - #100

This issue of the E-Gobrecht is a special edition and published late-September 2008. It is solely dedicated to assisting the Liberty Seated Collectors Club members with voting for the Gobrecht Journal Literary Award; best article in issues #76-100 of the Gobrecht Journal.

At the 2008 LSCC Annual meeting in Baltimore, one member raised a very valid question - "how can I vote for the best article in the past 25 issues if I don't have those issues?" To assist those members without the back issues of the Gobrecht Journal, the officers of the LSCC decided to publish a short paragraph on the content of each of all articles on the ballot. That information is contained herein.

In this issue, you will find a short paragraph summarizing the contents of each article on the ballot. These paragraphs contain only facts and any editorials, either real or implied, are purely unintentional.

Please review this information and the articles (if available), decide on your voting, mark your ballot, and return it in accordance with the instructions provided with the ballot. The ballots were postal mailed to all LSCC members in late - September. If you did not receive a ballot, please contact John McCloskey, LSCC President, at the following address:

John McCloskey

President, LSCC

5718 King Arthur Drive

Kettering, OH 45429

or Email at:

John.McCloskey@notes.udayton.edu

Thanks for your participation in this club event and we look forward to receiving your ballot.

Bill Bugert

Vice President, LSCC

Article Summaries

An Analysis of Rarity and Population Estimates for Liberty Seated Half Dollars

by Dick Osburn

Gobrecht Journal* Issue #76, November 1999

In this 14 page article, Dick Osburn cites the disparity of values and rarity for the Liberty Seated Half Dollars. He uses his knowledge and experience to provide an analysis of the rarity of the dates and major varieties of the series. He assigns them all into "Rarity Groups" which reflect various levels of rarity without regard for condition. Dick compares the individual mintages within that group and the Coin World Trends values. He then provides extensive comments of rarity within each Rarity Group and assigns an estimated population survival level for each group.

A Rarity Analysis for Liberty Seated Quarters

by Bob Foster

Gobrecht Journal* Issue #78, July 2000

In this 12 page article, Bob Foster cites the undervalued and underpriced trends of the Liberty Seated Quarter Dollars. He uses his knowledge and experience to provide an analysis of the rarity of the dates and major varieties of the series. He assigns them all into "Rarity Groups" which reflect various levels of rarity without regard for condition. Bob compares the individual mintages within that group and the Coin World Trends values. He then provides extensive comments of rarity within each Rarity Group and details his listing for the top 20 most underrated dates and top 20 rarest dates in uncirculated condition.

The Missing San Francisco Mint Cornerstone

by Richard Kelly and Nancy Oliver

Gobrecht Journal* Issue #78, July 2000

In this 4 page article, co-authors Nancy Oliver and Richard Kelly discuss historical aspects of the cornerstone of the San Francisco Branch Mint building. They cite original documentation indicating one coin of each denomination from 1870-S was emplaced in that cornerstone. Nancy and Richard detail what those coins would be including an 1870-S half dime and an 1870-S dollar. Finally, they offer a possible explanation for why a cornerstone marker was not found during the 1974 building renovation.

Gobrecht Dollars Revisited – Parts I, II, and III

by Michael Carboneau and James Gray

Gobrecht Journal* Issues #79 (November 2000), #82 (November 2003), and #87 (July 2003)

This listing includes three articles on Gobrecht Dollars by co-authors Michael Carboneau and James Gray. The 12 page Part I introduces the Gobrecht Dollar and explains their refinement of Walter Breen's die rotation alignments. Secondly, they cite specifics of the 1837 Gobrecht Dollar issue and support their theories by tabulating data of actual coins they studied. The 12 page Part II's introduction recalls the search for post 1836 die alignment I Gobrecht Dollars and introduces 1838 and 1839 Gobrecht Dollars. The majority of this part is dedicated to describing and illustrating the die alignment characteristics of the 1838 Judd-84 and 1839 Judd-104 Dollars. The 12 page Part III of this series introduces the J-58 "Name on the Base" Gobrecht Dollar, provides extensive historical infor-

A Detailed Study of the 1842-O Half Dime
by Mark Sheldon
Gobrecht Journal* Issue #88, November 2003

In this 13 page article, Mark Sheldon provides an extensive study of the five distinct die states for the 1842-O half dime. Heavily illustrated, Mark provides background information on past studies on the 1842-O half dime and describes in detail each of the five obverse and reverse die states including the die depression and die cracks. He concludes the article with relative rarities of these die states.

Warrant Listing 1870-S Seated Quarter Discovered
by Richard Kelly and Nancy Oliver
Gobrecht Journal* Issue #90, July 2004

In this 2 page article, co-authors Richard Kelly and Nancy Oliver provide the first evidence of the existence of an 1870-S Liberty Seated Quarter Dollar. During their research in the San Bruno, CA National Archives, they discovered a warrant for the coins that are contained in the cornerstone of the San Francisco Branch Mint. Among those listed was an 1870-S quarter dollar; none are known to currently exist!

Riddell's Plan for the Melting Room at the New Orleans Mint
by Greg Lambousy
Gobrecht Journal* Issue #91, November 2004

In this 6 page article, Greg Lambousy provides a short biography of John Leonard Riddell, the New Orleans Branch Mint melter and refiner from 1839 to 1848. From Riddell's personal journals, Greg also quotes the regular system of operating the melting room at the New Orleans Branch Mint. This system includes everything from a step-by-step process of producing ingots, required attire for the workmen, and cleaning of the pots. The author concludes with a continuation of Riddell's biography until his death in 1865.

The Best of Times – Recollections of a Dedicated Seated Collector

by James Gray

Gobrecht Journal* Issue #92, March 2005

In this 12 page article, Jim Gray recounts the story of the acquisition and sale of his “Jim Gray’s North Carolina Collection,” a collection of 460 Liberty Seated coins of all denominations with an average grade of AU58. This story describes his twenty year project to collect high grade original coins of all the seated series and his evolution from a novice collector to a knowledgeable numismatist. Many of his sources, experiences, recollections, and lessons learned are described in this article.

Die Marriages of 1861-O Half Dollars, Parts 1 and 2

by Randall Wiley

Gobrecht Journal* Issues #94 (November 2005) and #97 (November 2006)

This listing includes two articles on 1861-O Half Dollar die varieties by Randy Wiley. It details the results of his research effort and, most recently, his study of the SS Republic hoard of 1861-O half dollars. His 26 page Part 1 describes the background, emission sequence, information on Union, Louisiana, and Confederate coining authorities, and detailed descriptions of fifteen die marriages. Randy includes tables, photographs, and a step-by-step attribution guide. Randy’s 15 page Part 2 provides a historical timeline of operations of the New Orleans Branch Mint in 1861 and details answers to two questions: which coining authority made each die marriage and how rare it is. A table at the end of the article summarizes the die marriages and likely mintages for each die marriage.

The Major 100 Liberty Seated Dime Varieties

by Gerry Fortin

Gobrecht Journal* Issue #94, November 2005

In this 7 page article, Gerry Fortin describes his selection of the top 100 Varieties of the Liberty Seated Dime series. He lists them and provides detailed descriptions with three goals: expanding the numismatic community with an awareness of an alternate approach to collecting dime varieties, desiring a universally accepted cross section of die variety types that are popular with collectors, and increasing the competitive challenge, comradeship, and excitement with a 100 dime variety set.

The New Orleans Branch Mint in 1840
by Randall Wiley
Gobrecht Journal* Issue #99, July 2007

In this 11 page article, Randy Wiley provides information gleaned from his research of the National Archives about New Orleans Branch Mint operations from 1838 to 1840. He recounts the turmoil of the early year's operations and includes information on dies prepared for New Orleans and monthly mintages. Randy also describes the re-engraved dentils for an 1840-O half dollar obverse die and how it applies to an 1840-O With Drapery large O reverse die.

Martin Luther Beistle – A Biography
by Bill Bugert
Gobrecht Journal* Issue #100, November 2007

In this 16 page article, Bill Bugert provides the results of his research efforts for a biography of Martin Luther Beistle, an early 20th century Pennsylvania businessman, family man, and numismatist who authored the 1929 reference book on Half Dollar varieties. Bill summarizes Beistle's life, his business, his massive half dollar collection, Beistle's efforts to write his book, and his invention of the "Unique Coin Holder." Bill also provides a handy reference to the three original editions of Beistle's half dollar book.
